The Learning Paradox

Despite the employee development industry expanding to $325 billion in 2025, both business and HR leaders, as well as employees, remain dissatisfied - and businesses struggle to find & retain the right talent. (source: Forbes)

In 2024, 78%
of business executives report that talent scarcity is reaching crisis proportions.

Only 11% of L&D professionals believe employees have the skills they need for future roles.

Only one third of L&D professionals say employees can quickly apply the skills they have learned.

Only 44% of employees report that career development at their company is effective at facilitating growth.
